

Communities continue expansion in Bridgeport

After successfully pioneering a vibrant new residential hotspot at the south end of Chicago's Bridgeport neighborhood, Chicago-based Lexington Homes is expanding in the area with 41 new-construction homes. Sales of single-family homes at Lexington Place2 began in September and sales of rowhomes at Lexington Square3 are slated to start this winter. Both new communities will be located at 36th and Sangamon streets.

"We were pioneers in building new homes in the southern portion of Bridgeport, and today we are so proud of the lively, family-friendly community we've helped create," says Jeff Benach, co-principal of Lexington Homes.

Lexington Place2 will offer 20 single-family homes in two floor plans measuring approximately 2,000 to 2,300 square feet, with base prices starting from $469,990. Homes will have three or four bedrooms, two and a half baths, separate living and dining rooms, and two-car garages.

Lexington Square3 will offer 21 rowhomes in two floor plans ranging from 2,216 to 2,507 square feet, from the $380,000s. The three-story homes will in-
