Chicago, IL – Chicago-based Lexington Homes has announced new plans for its Woodleaf at The Sanctuary Club community of luxury single-family homes in north-suburban Kildeer.

Woodleaf at The Sanctuary Club offers one-half- to three-fourth- acre sites for 26 custom and semi-custom homes, all of which back up to private views of abundant mature trees, Kemper Lake, or both.

Lexington's floor plans range from 3,300 to 5,000 square feet and prices start in the low $700,000s.

According to Jeff Benach, co-principal of Lexington Homes, Woodleaf at The Sanctuary Club offers a unique building opportunity for luxury homebuyers that he hasn't seen before.

Stevenson High School

“I've never known of another Chicago builder to do anything quite like what we're doing at Woodleaf,” said Benach.

“We're offering almost twice as many plans as available lots, plus buyers still have the option to design a home from scratch. It's an interesting custom/semi-custom/semi-production hybrid.

“But buyers are responding to it, as we've already sold three homes in our soft opening and will be breaking ground this spring on a model.”

The community is located in the highly regarded Kildeer Countryside Community Consolidated School District 96, which includes Stevenson High School, one of the top high schools in the state.
